"Quarrywood", a superbly crafted family compound is located on a very private stretch of shoreline (over 1,400 feet of deeded waterfront) literally moments from the famed Ojibway Club. It is the handsome product of the combined efforts of the owner, a committed Georgian Bayer, the architect, also a local cottager and the contractor, a well-regarded builder.

The project consists of a main three bedroom cottage and a two bedroom sleeping cottage both sited on high ground overlooking a perfectly protected harbour with a natural sand beach. The structures were built with the view to withstand the weather extremes of the Georgian Bay climate: concrete based siding guaranteed for 50 years, high quality stains with a 15 year guarantee, chimneys built entirely of local cut stone granite and double hung custom Thermopane windows throughout.

The main cottage (approximately 2,400 sq. ft.) a compilation design effort with the owner and James MacDonald, Architect, is irregularly shaped with the an open plan living-dining-kitchen pod connected to a 3 bedroom sleeping pod by a long screened porch with sliding glass panels. The entire space is flooded with natural light.....this airy quality is further enhanced by the clear maple flooring, the blond pine wall paneling and the alabaster uplighting.
