Adjacent to Hockley Valley, this home started life as a schoolhouse, constructed of granite and fieldstone, built in 1866. In 2003, an addition consisting of an entrance hall, 3 bedrooms, 3 bathrooms, a basement and a 2 car garage was added, beautifully constructed of board and batten. The schoolhouse itself includes the open concept kitchen, a pantry (the original cloakroom), a 2 piece washroom, a 12 foot by 20 foot loft and the great room, measuring 17 feet by 20 feet and including a floor to ceiling brick wood-burning fireplace. The upper walls in the great room are clad in pressed tin and 2 blackboards are still in place, all part of the original schoolhouse, with its 13 foot high ceiling. All this sits on a 5.95 acre property offering trails and forest.
